And the Admiralty Evinces Unusual
Interest in the Tests of the New Gatling Guns.

Special Cable to the Journal.

(Copyright, 1893, by W. R. Hearst.)
LONDON, Dec. 17.—There is to be an extensive celebration of Peace Sunday to-morrow. Ministers throughout the country, churchmen and dissenters, are to unite in prayer for world-wide peace. The Earl's receipt and the Strand movement have given a mighty impetus to the celebration.

The Bishop of London adds to his clerical letter recently addressed to the clergy: "The present seems to be a time wherein the Christian message of peace on earth needs to be enforced on the consciences of men. This may be done without expressing an opinion on current politics, but by urging in a peaceable manner."

Exercised Over New Gatling Guns.
The Sandy Hook trials of the Gatling dynamite gun are already exercising the officials of the Admiralty. Orders have been sent to agents in the United States to report thereon. An Admiralty circular has been issued urging on commanding officers more frequent exercise in the use of quick-firing guns. The circular says that the maximum effect from these guns can be obtained only by crews long accustomed to work together.

Wonderful New Royal Yacht.
The royal yacht building at the Pembroke dock is making wonderful progress and a thousand workmen are employed. Her measurements are 280 feet long by 50 feet beam, an unusual length, nearly eight times her breadth. The launch is fixed for March.

ABOUT THE EYES OF FAMOUS MEN.

Some Curious Facts About the Visual Organs of the Great.

BISMARCK'S GRAY OPTICS.

John Ruskin's Soft Blue Eyes Found Their Counterpart in the Face of Von Moltke.

LONDON, Dec. 10. (Correspondence.)—Chas. Draycott, writing in the Temple Bar magazine on the eyes of famous men, tells for the first time a number of interesting facts concerning the visual organs of the great. Here are some of the eyes described:

No man had brighter eyes than Byron; they were gray and fringed with long, dark lashes. Lady Blessington, writing of him a few months before his departure for Greece, adds that one eye was visibly larger than the other.

Charles Lamb is described as having glittering eyes, strangely dissimilar in color, one being hazel, the other having specks of gray in the iris, as you see red spots in the bloodstone.

Eyes, as we know, are apt to vary considerably in shades of color in the same individual from time to time—a fact that explains why Wordsworth's familiar description of Coleridge as a noticeable man with large gray eyes, does not quite agree with Carlyle's impression that his eyes were of a light hazel, nor this again with the writer who found them "light gray, prominent, and of liquid brilliancy, as though the orb itself retreated to the innermost recesses of the brain."

Wellington's Hawk Eyes.
The Duke of Wellington also had, it is said, blue hawk's eyes, gleaming with military genius.

The most striking feature of Burns was his large, dark eye. It was, we are told, by one writer, full of mind, and literally flowed when he spoke with emotion of interest. Sir Walter Scott, who knew the poet when he lived in Edinburgh, says: "I never saw such a pair of eyes in a human head, and I have seen the most distinguished men of my time."

Such a pair of eyes as no man, or lion, or lynx of that century bore elsewhere. Most excellent, potent, brilliant, eyes, swift-darting as the stars, steadfast as the sun, superlative gray, of the azure-gray color, large enough, not of a glaring size, the habitual expression of them, vigilance and penetrating sense, rapidly resting on depth. Which is an excellent combination, and gives as the result of a lambent outer radiance springing from some great inner sea of light and fire in the man. What is this but the very essence of the man distilled, as it were, from his eye?

An officer describing Napoleon as he appeared on board the Bellerophon, wrote: "His eyes are gray and the most piercing you can imagine. His glance, you fancy, searches into your inmost thoughts. The late Prince Bismarck had gray eyes in deep sockets almost hidden by bushy eyebrows. Lord Wolsey's physical vigor is said to be indicated in his clear, calm eye of blue, 'not cold, but steady, penetrating, and observant.' Carlyle describes the eyes of Charles Dickens as 'clear, blue, eyes of intelligence,' and Forster adds his impression of them as 'wonderfully beaming with intellect, and running over with humor and cheerfulness.' Douglas Jerrold had keen blue eyes gleaming from beneath shaggy eyebrows.

A Remarkable Similarity.
It is an odd coincidence that two men with such a different mission in the world as John Ruskin and Von Moltke should have been endowed with eyes that might have proclaimed them as brothers. The eyes of the great tactician was lighted, we are told, by a pair of singularly soft blue eyes; and, in the presence of the author of "Modern Painters," the gentle look in his clear blue eyes is at once pleasantly felt.

The Duke of Marlborough had blue eyes fringed by long eyelashes and strongly marked, well shaped eyebrows, which doubtless had their effect in winning the admiration for the "handsome Englishman," and the keen, steel-blue eyes of Lord Roberts are well known to-day.

President Kruger is represented to possess grave, shrewd eyes, usually half closed, but which have a knack of suddenly opening and fastening upon you with a look of intense penetration.

The penetrating glance of Goethe's dark lustre eyes retained its brightness from childhood to age, and Leigh Hunt's "wonderous eyes were no less beautiful in their aged than in their youthful aspect." Vol-taire's eyes, too, kept their preternatural brilliancy to extreme old age. In this respect Mr. Gladstone's eyes were equally remarkable, and the same may be said of His Holiness Leo XIII.

THE COMMISSIONERS REFUSE TO TALK.

Judge Day Says the Treaty May Go Before This Senate or Before the Next.

Southampton, Dec. 17.—To the interviewers who besieged the American Peace Commissioners here to-day before they sailed for New York on the American Line steamer St. Louis, the Commissioners said they could not discuss the terms of the treaty of peace with Spain.

Mr. Whitelaw Reid and Judge Day were much interested in the interview of the Manila correspondent of the Associated Press with Rear-Admiral Dewey, but they would not discuss either that or the protest made by Aguinaldo, the representative of Aguinaldo, the Philippine leader. Judge Day said the treaty of peace would probably be delivered to President McKinley on December 24. But he added it was impossible to say whether it would be presented to the present Senate or to that which comes into office in March next. This, however, was a matter which the President will decide.

DIES IN AYLESBURY.

Cousin of the Great Bankers Passes Away Suddenly at His English Home.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Baron Ferdinand James de Rothschild, member of Parliament for the Aylesbury Division of Buckinghamshire, died suddenly this morning at Waddesdon Manor, his country seat in Aylesbury.

Baron de Rothschild was a son of Baron Aveline de Rothschild, of Vienna. He was born in Paris, December 19, 1839. He was educated in Vienna, but went to London to live, and became a naturalized Englishman. He is the only member of his family who ever acquired the English nationality, which he did at Waddesdon Manor in 1871. He was a member of the House of Commons, and took no active part in the great Rothschild banking house. It was while a guest at Waddesdon Manor that the Prince of Wales met with the accident that nearly made him a cripple for life. Baron Rothschild was a widower. He leaves no children.

SOLD FORGED PAINTINGS.

Spurious Masterpieces of Celebrated Artists Sent to America.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The police of Brussels have unearthed a manufactory where spurious masterpieces of all the foremost modern artists have been produced. A number of false Millets, Pissis de Chavannes and Baudrys were seized. They are valued at a million francs from the sale of their forgeries, a majority of which have been shipped to America.

WON TOO FREELY AT CLUB.

Stranger Introduced at Aristocratic Institution Took Every Player's Money.

Berlin, Dec. 17.—A gambling scandal affecting a number of aristocrats has been brought to light. The Jovial Club, frequented by high army officers and Government officials, has existed in Berlin for some years. A stranger was recently introduced by two highly respected members and soon became a favorite. All went swimmingly until rumors about his antecedents began to circulate, and it was noticed that luck invariably favored him. The affair is likely to have serious results in view of Emperor William's determination to suppress gambling.

Paris, Dec. 17.—Routet de Monvel is not the only famous French artist who has recently visited America. Carolus Duran, generally considered the foremost portrait painter of France, will leave Havre for New York early in January. M. Duran has received many important commissions for portraits from wealthy Americans. It is said this popular portrait painter carried away from the United States after his former visit some $50,000, received for portrait work alone.

REVEALS A PART OF FRENCH SPY SYSTEM.

House of an Artilleryman's Father Searched and War Office Documents Found.

Paris, Dec. 17.—The Journal announces that a case of espionage has been discovered at Nismes, capital of the Department of Gard, where the search of the house of the father of an ex-artilleryman named Terrier, has revealed the fact that he was in possession of several compromising War Office documents.

ARMY AND NAVY EXHIBITS AT PARIS ABANDONED.

France Was Afraid She Would Show Weakness, and Now Russia Follows Her Lead.

Paris, Dec. 17.—Since the authorities decided that there should be no French army or navy exhibits at the Exposition, on the ground that officials of the services could not agree on the relative space, the real reason being that France is likely to show comparative weakness in naval matters, Russia has sent notice that she will not send army or navy exhibits. It is feared that other nations will also refuse. The result is a blow to the Exposition, as this entire important department is likely to be abandoned.

FRANCE TO HELP SPAIN.

Report on the Bourse That She Will Lend Her About $200,000,000.

Paris, Dec. 17.—The rise in securities on the Bourse to-day was due to the rumor that negotiations are in progress for a loan to Spain of 1,000,000,000 francs (about $200,000,000), based on the tobacco monopolies.

KING MENELIK PLEASED.

He Has a Royal Celebration Over Queen Victoria's Photographic Message.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Advices from Abyssinia say King Menelik was much gratified at the message of friendship from Queen Victoria sent to him in a photograph. The reception of the message was made the occasion of a great ceremony, at which a royal salute was fired.

Policemen Build a Tramp's Cave.

Roundsmen Kidnap and a Squad of Police from Hoboken Police Headquarters yesterday raided a retreat of tramps in a cave at the foot of the hill leading to Jersey City Heights, and arrested four young men, whom they found stretched around a fire.

The prisoners, Philip Bauman, twenty-two years old; Victor Batley, eighteen years old; and Patrick Logan, fifty-two years old, all without homes, were sent to jail for ninety days, and sixteen-year-old William Steward, of No. 34 Congress street, was remanded.

Thriving Marriage Bureaus.

"An aristocrat of the old nobility, forty years old, of agreeable, distinguished appearance, of scanty means, though absolutely free from debt, wishes to marry a lady possessing a large fortune."

A marriage agent, answered this advertisement and a contract was drawn up by virtue of which the agent was to receive a per cent of the fortune brought by the lady if the advertiser, a count, found a wife through his instrumentalities. The count was put to a severe test, as several wealthy ladies, but after a time he informed the agent that he had reconsidered and intended to remain single.

After passing the lower instance the case has now been thrown out by the Supreme Court of Judicature, on the ground that payment of fees for procuring a marriage cannot be enforced by Prussian law.

That this mode of obtaining a partner for life is largely discredited is also proved by the fact that a newspaper devoted entirely to the interests of the business has for a long time been issued weekly in Berlin.

MARRIAGE TRADE IN GERMANY.

Rich Jewesses Prove Great Matches for Army Officers.

HAMBURG, Dec. 17.—It is notorious that marriages are made in heaven, but to judge from facts brought to light by several lawsuits which have lately occupied German courts—considerable assistance is rendered by earthly intermediaries of both sexes.

It transpired in one case just settled that a considerable business is done in Berlin by promoting marriages between officers in the army and rich Jewesses. The German nobility and upper classes (the Junkers) are in general poor. They are, however, very eligible, and very careful whom they admit into the favored circle of their society.

The bulk of the capital in Germany is in the hands of Jews. Indeed, if the truth were known, it would probably show that the present prosperous state of trade and commerce in Germany is attributable rather to Jewish than to purely German enterprise. This applies, at any rate, to the capital.

Fear Jew Competition.

The Germans themselves almost acknowledge their fear of the superiority of their fellow citizens of Jewish extraction by carefully excluding them from almost every position of political influence. There is, too, hardly one Jew among the officers of the German army. Not that there is anything in Jewish law or in that of any of the German States to prevent a Jew becoming an officer. The circumstance is entirely due to the officers themselves and to the system of appointment to vacancies in the officers' corps.

It will be easily understood from this that Jews and Jewesses are not looked on favorably in the "best society."

When there are officers wanting money, or a German lady or in that of any Jewish ladies who wish to get into "society," intermediaries will be found who will aid in bringing about the necessary introductions. When, however, these intermediaries do not receive a sufficiently high brokerage, or are in that of any of the subsequent happiness, the public learn interesting details.

The most recent case has been of peculiar interest, as one of the married parties, besides being an aristocrat and a prominent political personage, is the proprietor of an extensively read Berlin newspaper. Some time ago the following advertisement, which is a sample of what are published every day in the leading German newspapers, appeared in a Berlin paper:

"An aristocrat of the old nobility, forty years old, of agreeable, distinguished appearance, of scanty means, though absolutely free from debt, wishes to marry a lady possessing a large fortune."

A marriage agent, answered this advertisement and a contract was drawn up by virtue of which the agent was to receive a per cent of the fortune brought by the lady if the advertiser, a count, found a wife through his instrumentalities. The count was put to a severe test, as several wealthy ladies, but after a time he informed the agent that he had reconsidered and intended to remain single.

After passing the lower instance the case has now been thrown out by the Supreme Court of Judicature, on the ground that payment of fees for procuring a marriage cannot be enforced by Prussian law.

That this mode of obtaining a partner for life is largely discredited is also proved by the fact that a newspaper devoted entirely to the interests of the business has for a long time been issued weekly in Berlin.

THE HEART PALPITATES, BUT IT IS OF NO USE TO TREAT THE HEART WHILE THE DISEASED STOMACH CAUSING THE PALPITATION GOES UNHEEDED AND UNHELPED.

The heart palpitates, but it is of no use to treat the heart while the diseased stomach causing the palpitation goes unheeded and unhelped. The nerves tingle and twitch with pain. But it's no use to take bromide preparations to quiet the nerves, drugging them into drowsiness as crying children are sometimes drugged. What the crying child generally needs is food. The nerves cry also because of hunger. You can only stop the outcry of the nerves by feeding them, and that must be done through the stomach. In thousands and thousands of cases it has been shown that when the stomach, together with its allied organs of digestion and nutrition, are put into a sound condition of health, the health of the whole body is at once restored. Strength comes back; the color returns to the cheek, the sparkle to the eye, the spring to the step. There's real interest in life, real pleasure in business, real comfort in home. The nerves are quiet. They laugh some time, but they never cry. The heart works steadily and noiselessly like some perfectly governed engine. The

SUDDEN DEATH FROM HEART DISEASE.

A Prominent Merchant Suddenly Expires While at His Place of Business.

How frequently we see the above or similar announcements. People are full of pity for the family of the man so suddenly and sadly stricken. They say, "How terribly sudden! Why, I saw him yesterday and he looked good for thirty years." Exactly! The bridge at Ashtabula looked good for fifty years the day before the great accident. Great trains ran in safety along the trembling trestles which in a few more hours were to collapse in a fearful fall. The iron in them had been gradually disintegrating for years. The death of this man was no more sudden than the fall of the bridge. Each had the strength slowly undermined. And like the bridge, when the man's strength reached its minimum resisting capacity, down he went.

There's a fact for public consideration. One form of disease is rarely responsible for a premature death. Time and time again the doctor in attendance on the man suffering from typhoid or other fever says, "I could have pulled that man through if it had not been for his weak stomach." And that "weak stomach" is the one ever present danger to the business man. He has his warnings. Time and again his stomach cries out, revolting at the food given it, perhaps ejecting it forcibly. Time and again he gasps and claps his hand to his heart when it gives a sudden, suffocating leap. Time and again, when his starved nerves have protested by headache, neuralgia or some other form of pain, he has thought he must get medical treatment. And when his wife finally says, pleadingly, "My dear, do get something for your neuralgia," or "You must do something for your stomach," what does he do? He just stops into a drug store as he goes downtown and gets something in the tablet form which dulls his pain, and permits him to keep at work, but which does not oppose a straw in the way of the disease. Thus the undermining process goes on until the collapse comes, with its shock to the family and surprise to the friends.

THE WARNINGS.

The first necessity of every man is to heed the warnings Nature gives, that this undermining process is going on in his system. A stomach weakened by abuse, gorged with over eating or over drinking, or those too highly seasoned, becomes weakened and fails to thoroughly digest the food. A heavy, sodden mass is accumulated in the stomach, to ferment as the first step in its decay, giving off foul gases to distend the stomach, and poison the blood, until it becomes thin, weak and lacking in the red corpuscles so necessary to perfect health.

The over distended stomach presses upon the heart, and the latter organ is also disturbed through sympathy, the same system of nerves being distributed to both organs. Thus palpitation and irregular action of the heart with its attendant shortness of breath, result, and in time, disease of the heart itself is established.

The gases and other poisons generated from undigested, fermenting and decaying food in the stomach becloud the brain, causing headaches and pain in the eyes.

Being absorbed into the blood these poisons reach every part and organ of the system. The kidneys are thereby poisoned, causing Bright's disease and diabetes. Filtering through the skin, troublesome skin diseases often show themselves.

As every organ and every nerve depend for their nourishment and renewal upon the stomach, weak digestion shows itself not alone in loss of appetite and flesh, but also in nervousness, debility, bad complexion and many other derangements.

Some people know where the trouble lies. They locate it in the stomach, because they have pain there after eating, an irregular craving for food, or an appetite that eating does not satisfy. There is heaviness after a meal, a feeling of undue fullness. Perhaps the stomach sour, and there are bitter risings and belchings. These symptoms mark various forms and stages of "weak stomach." They will not all be present in every case or in the earlier stages of the disease. Any one of these symptoms locates the trouble in the stomach and the digestive and nutritive functions, which are disturbed.

The only way to properly heed these warnings is at once to

in an intelligent and persistent effort to restore the health to its normal condition. This cannot be done by treating diseases which are only symptoms of the real and fundamental trouble.

liver performs its functions unobtrusively. The kidneys do a day's work every day in filtering out the impurities which would clog the circulation, the lungs are actively healthy—in brief the whole body in all its parts works together to carry on the perfect scheme of physical being.

WHAT TO DO.

Now comes the question, "How can this ideal condition of health be attained?" No one is better fitted to answer that question than one who has been cured of disease, and been uplifted into a condition of sound health. Such a one is Mr. Thomas G. Lever, of Lever, Richland Co., S. C., who writes: "I was afflicted with what the doctors called nervous indigestion. Took medicine from my family physician to no avail. In looking over one of Doctor Pierce's Memorandum Books, I found my case described exactly. I wrote to him and made a statement. He sent me a descriptive list of questions, also hygienic rules. I carried these out as best I could, but I thought myself incurable, as I suffered so much with pain under my ribs and an empty feeling in my stomach. At night would have cold or hot feet and hands alternately. I was getting very nervous and suffered a great deal mentally, thinking that death would soon claim me. Always expected something unusual to take place, was irritable and impatient, and greatly reduced in flesh. I could scarcely eat anything that would not produce a bad feeling in my stomach. After some hesitation, owing to my prejudices against patent medicines, I decided to try a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellets.' After taking several bottles of each, found I was improving. I continued for six months or more, off and on. I have to be careful yet, at times, of what I eat, in order that I may feel good and strong. I fully believe if any one suffering with indigestion or torpid liver or chronic cold would take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' and observe a few simple hygienic rules he would soon be greatly benefited, and with a little perseverance would be entirely cured."

"My son, who has weak lungs and takes cold easily, used just one bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and was cured; got strong and very fleshy."

HOW THOUSANDS ARE SAVED.

That is the fact that thousands have been cured, by the patient, persistent use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The cure by the use of this remedy may be said to be certain since ninety-eight per cent of all who use it are perfectly and permanently cured. The time occupied in making the cure depends upon the stage of the disease and the condition of the patient. It is folly to expect that a disease which has fastened its roots around the vital organs of the body, in the slow progress of years, should be instantly and immediately cured. It takes time to cure complicated diseases, but the cure comes in time with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery."

"In the year 1896 I was taken quite sick and our family physician was called," writes Miss Lula M. Brittle, of Ivor, Va. "He left me some medicine, but it failed to relieve me. He came again and again, but my case grew worse. I tried every remedy anybody told me of, but still I suffered. One day I found a little book in which was printed a few of Dr. Pierce's patients' testimonials, so I sat right down and wrote to him, describing my suffering. He replied, advising me what to take. I immediately sent to the drug store and got one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and a vial of his 'Pleasant Pellets.' After taking the medicine one week, I felt greatly relieved; my head did not pain me any more, and my stomach was relieved of its burdensome feeling. Sometimes I had been so I could scarcely breathe, and could not eat anything without suffering pain. I thought the death angel would knock at my door, for I thought that there was but death for me, until the Lord in answer to prayer to Him, pointed me to the little book containing Dr. Pierce's address. I am glad to say that, after suffering ten months from a complicated case of liver complaint, constipation, indigestion, suppression of monthly function, and kidney disease, too, I reckon, for I suffered excruciating pain in my back and head, six bottles of Dr. Pierce's 'Golden Medical Discovery,' three vials of Dr. Pierce's 'Pleasant Pellets' and two bottles of his 'Compound Extract of Smart-Weed' cured me entirely. I gladly recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines to all sufferers."

COMMON SENSE TREATMENT.

The diseases which originate in the stomach are cured through the stomach by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That is the common sense way of reaching them. The "Discovery" alters the diseased condition of the stomach and the organs of digestion and nutrition. It increases the activity of the blood making glands, so increasing the supply of the vital fluid. It purges the system of effete and waste matter, which clogs its canals, and poisons the current which flows along the veins and arteries. It removes the poisons which accumulate when the kidneys and liver fail in their duty. When this is done the stomach and its associate organs begin to provide the essential nourishment for bone, brain and blood in proper proportions. The nerve centres are nourished into health. Pains disappear. Sleep becomes restful. The appetite is restored and "good digestion waits on appetite." The yellow and wrinkled skin is replaced by a smooth skin and bright complexion. In fact, the life is renewed. All this is done through the stomach.

The operation of "Golden Medical Discovery" is two-fold. It first corrects the irregularities of the stomach and the organs of digestion and nutrition. Next it furnishes the pabulum required by Nature to feed the starving organs of the body. It restores health in Nature's own way, by nourishment.

DOES NOT INEBRIATE.

There is no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant in "Golden Medical Discovery," neither does it contain any opium or other narcotic. It does not therefore create a craving for intoxicating stimulants or dangerous narcotics.

If a dealer offers another preparation as "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery" it's because it pays him a trifle more profit to sell an inferior preparation. Such a man does not care for your health. Go to the dealer who gives you what you ask for, and who does not insult your good judgment by urging upon you something as "just as good."

MYSTERIES REVEALED.

There is a "Dark Continent" which every man should explore for himself, know its mysteries and its wonders, which are greater than all the world-wonders. That unexplored "Continent" is the human body, with its marvelous mechanism, its God-given functions. The best guide for any explorer of this terra incognita is Doctor Pierce's Common Sense Medical Discovery. It unravels the mysteries of life. It brightens the twilight of the marriage chamber. It points the way to health, and extends a helping hand to those who stumble in the path. It is invaluable for reference on all questions which affect the health and well being of man or woman.
